

BRC GASTROPUB

Houston, Texas

“Do you want the real name or the PG name?” she asked from behind the bar.

“I’ll take the real name first,” I replied.

“Big Red Cock

“And the PG?”

“Big Red Chicken.”

Now that we’ve got that cleared up, it’s time for a beer. The list is long. The taps are poised. There is a lot of craft on draft.

Saint Arnold’s Weizenbock. It’s local. It’s dark and mouth-filling with creamy chocolate malt flavor. It’s mildly carbonated. It’s solid with a touch of sweetness.

Which brings me to the next mystery of BRC: Why is there cake on the bar?
